Passing on course guidance

CEFR B1 | Unit 3: Education | Reading

Read the original text. You may underline evidence and reread as needed.

Name _____ Date _____

A tutor gives the class three instructions for the project. Students must submit a 600-word report by Friday at noon, use at least two sources and include a short note explaining each person's contribution. The tutor says that an extension must be requested before the deadline and is not automatic.

Later, Hana summarizes the guidance for an absent classmate. She writes, "The tutor said we had to submit by Friday at noon. She asked us to use two or more sources and explain our contributions." Hana also includes the extension rule.

Her classmate asks whether the contribution note counts towards the word limit. Hana cannot find an answer in the written guidance. She does not guess. She sends a clarification question to the tutor and tells her classmate which point remains uncertain.

When the reply arrives, it confirms that the note is separate from the 600 words. Hana updates her summary and labels the new information clearly. She keeps the original deadline visible so the update cannot be mistaken for extra time.

Original Ilmiya practice text. Scenarios and research examples are fictional.