The wrong bus, a good afternoon

CEFR A2 | Unit 1: Experiences | Reading

Read the original text. You may underline evidence and reread as needed.

Name _____ Date _____

Last Saturday, I planned to visit my cousin. I left home at ten and took a bus outside the market. I did not check its number. After twenty minutes, I saw the sea. My cousin lives near the hills, so I knew I was on the wrong bus.

I asked the driver for help. He told me to get off at the next stop and take bus 14 back. There was a small museum beside the stop. I called my cousin and explained the problem. She laughed and said, "Wait there. I can meet you at the museum."

She arrived at twelve. We visited the museum together and ate lunch nearby. Finally, we took the correct bus to her home. I was embarrassed at first, but we had an interesting afternoon. Next time, I will check the bus number before I get on.

Original Ilmiya practice text. Scenarios and research examples are fictional.